KINDNESS ROCKS

Drop a Rock Day is July 3rd and it is dedicated to painting, hiding and finding rocks with an uplifting message or symbol. The purpose is to bring hope, show kindness and have fun.

Painting. To begin, choose a small, smooth stone. Wash away any dirt and let it dry; then, it's time to paint. Some people draw designs, including flowers or suns, and others write words, like "be kind" or "you rock." Acrylic paint is ideal for this project because it dries quickly. Once dry, seal the rock with a nontoxic spray sealant. This is your kindness rock!

Hiding. The key is to place your rock in a public area so someone can find it, but not in a spot that will cause harm to people, animals or the environment. Go to a park or near a bench or fountain.

Finding. You can actively search for kindness rocks or simply let yourself stumble upon one-not literally, of course! Once you see one, let its positivity inspire you before re-hiding it. Or you can bring the rock home if the message really touches you.

If you like to express your creativity or paint just for fun, please join our Art & Craft Workshop for some Rock Painting on Monday, July 3rd, at 2:00pm
2nd floor, Activity Room.

Salute to the Union

Every July 4, a national salute booms out at noon, when military bases across the country fire cannons honoring the United States. A total of 50 rounds, one for each state, is blasted out in a span of roughly 4 minutes. Called the Salute to the Union, the tradition dates back to the first anniversary of Independence Day, when a 13-gun salute was fired to commemorate the original American Colonies.
